History

Kailali Multiple Campus (KMC) stands as a premier academic institution in the region, dedicated to advancing higher education and supporting the comprehensive development of its students. KMC commits to create an enriching learning atmosphere, encourage critical thinking, and cultivate capable individuals who can make meaningful contributions to society. Forty-three years ago, Kailali District lacked any institutions of higher education. The absence of post-SLC educational opportunities and the growing social demand created a pressing need for a campus in the district. Before the establishment of KMC, most students from the region had to travel to Kathmandu or India to continue their studies after SLC. In response, the people of Kailali took the initiative to establish a campus. This led to the founding of Kailali Commerce Campus in 1980, which was later renamed Kailali Multiple Campus (KMC).

The financial and other resources necessary for establishing the campus were gathered through the dedicated efforts and sacrifices of the local community. People from all walks of life generously contributed to the campus fund. In its early days, KMC was operated in Panchodaya School, serving fewer than 100 students. In 1983, the campus was relocated to its current location. Currently, KMC is affiliated with Far Western University (FWU) since 2021 and now hosts over 6,000 students. Since its inception, KMC has educated thousands of students who are now contributing to various sectors of society.

KMC has been a trailblazing community-based educational institution in Nepal. Nestled in the scenic and serene eastern part of Dhangadhi Sub-metropolitan City, KMC is now a fully government-aided, not-for-profit campus, established with the sole purpose of providing higher education. KMC has become a hub for excellence in higher education because of its top-notch academic program, ample physical facilities, affordable tuition fee, and convenient location that allows it to serve every district in the Far Western Province.

Vision

Kailali Multiple Campus intends to be a prestigious autonomous academic institution of higher education in Nepal committed to academic excellence by providing access to educational opportunities in different branches of knowledge to the people and continuing efforts envisioning KMC as a center of educational excellence.
